STALKED BY VULTURES.

While a Man Was Trailing a Suc the Birds Followed the Mar. I met with a curious and not alt gether picasant experience, writes a Anglo-India: correspondent who no done a good deal of large and small game shooting in India, when I was one day stalking a black buck. B tween me and my quarry lay a large flat field of black cotton soil bordere by a very low, straggling and think growing hedge of small babul tree My only way to get a shot was to cros this, keeping the bushlest tree between me and the buck, who had not much to browse on and was therefore seldor motionless. I proceeded to do the hus dred yards on the flat of my stomac. This on loose, hard baked black cotton soil was no joke. I pushed my rifle on ahead; then, wriggling past it until the muzzle was near my knee, I would pain it on in front again, and so on.

Frogress was slow, and I was so a sorbed that I failed to observe sha ows crossing and recrossing my pas and circling round until I had got some 50 vards. Then the whirring wings attracted my ears, and almost a the same moment a vulture landed d the ground not 20 yards away. I look ed up. The air was alive with their repulsive looking birds. Then it dask ed across me that I was being stalked! Doubtless these birds were attracted by my extraordinary method of pr cedure and mistook me for a wound or dying man making a final effort to reach some shady spot. This was espicially possible, as the experience of curred in a famine district whe quent. By looking up I had evident now off at full tilt. > The Servant Problem in Mexico. "You foreignerg," says a Mexicon woman quoted by a correspondent & the Boston Transcript, "are so silly with servants. You come here and elclaim, 'How awfully the Mexicals treat their servants!' and then you git them iron beds and mattresses stuffed with wool, where with us they have to lie down to sleep on their straw mats, as is best for them. You think It nice to give them ribbons for ther hair and neck, and some of you pat the women in corsets and make their wear caps and aprons! This turns the heads of the young women, and the think they are real senoras (ladies) and grow impudent. That is how you spoil our servants, who, when they get angry with us, talk up loudly and say they will go and live in a foreign family! Ah, you foreigners are to shortsighted. Soon you will see how there are no more good, loyal, old fastioned servants! You pet a race which needs firmness and discipline, real
